My rent is now from $300 to $600 lower than that of any other Stationer, and my arrangements are such that I purchase my goods a little cheaper. It is useless to enumerate the articles of my stock. THE AMERICAN FRIEND!
HOLLOWAY'S PILLS!

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES—
I most humbly and sincerely thank you for the immense patronage which you have bestowed upon my Pills. I take this opportunity of stating that my Ancestors were all American Citizens, and that I entertain for all that concerns America and the Americans, the most lively sympathies, so much so that I originally compounded these Pills expressly to suit your climate, habits, constitutions, and manner of living, intending to establish myself amongst you, which I have now done, by taking premises in New York. THOMAS HOLLOWAY,

PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD AND LIVER AND BILIOUS COMPLAINTS.

The citizens of the Union suffer much from disorders of the Liver and Stomach. Scarcely any are free from the influence of these destructive maladies. Hence life wears fast. The fair sex, perhaps the most handsome in the world, up to a certain period, when, distressing to say, many lose their teeth and good looks while yet in the bey day of life. Such sad evils may be effectually remedied by continually keeping the blood pure and the Liver and Stomach in a healthy action, when life will flow smoothly, and resemble plants in a congenial clime, where an eternal spring appears to reign. As it regards the preservation of the human frame, and the duration of life, much may be effected, and I say fearlessly, that health and life can be prolonged for many years beyond their ordinary limits, if Holloway's Pills are taken to purify the blood according to the rules laid down for health contained in the directions which accompany each box.

A CASE OF WEAKNESS AND DEBILITY OF TEN YEARS STANDING, CURED BY HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

Copy of a Letter from Capt. John Johnson, Astor House New York, dated Jan. 5th, 1854.

To PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY, 38, corner of Ann and Nassau streets, New York—

SIR: It is with the most heartfelt pleasure I have to inform you that I have been restored to health and strength by taking your Pills. For the last ten years, I suffered from a derangement of the Liver and Stomach, and was reduced to such an extremity that I gave up my Ship, never expecting to go to sea any more, as I had tried every remedy that was recommended to me, but all to no purpose, and had given myself up to despair, when I was at last recommended to take your Pills. After using them for three months, the result is that I am now in better health than I have been for eleven years past, and indeed as well as ever I was in my life. You are at liberty to make this known for the benefit of others.

I remain, Sir, yours respectfully,
(Signed) JOHN JOHNSON.

These celebrated Pills are wonderfully efficacious in the following complaints:

Ague, Asthma,	Liver complaints,
Bilious complaints,	Retention of Urine,

TUESDAY::::::::::::::::::::NOVEMBER 14

Georgia Supreme Court.

We occupy considerable space to-day with a very able and elaborate opinion of the Supreme Court of Georgia, delivered by Judge BENNING. It is not entirely a new doctrine, but coming from a Southern Court may add to its interest.

It will be a great day for this Union, when the independence of the States shall be fully established. The curse of Slavery has warped the Constitution into its own hideous shape.—But the very system which the South has adopted for the furtherance of its plans, is the very one that will ultimately make this a free country. Fortunately, the State Rights doctrine is the only one for Freedom, and the only one that can save the slaveholder in any powerful outbreak of popular sentiment on the Anti Slavery question. Calhoun saw this and warned the South against it.

The recent elections ought to learn the slaveholders that the people of the North are done with Compromises, and will crush that institution whenever they can reach it.

MAYOR KILBOURN.—We copy from the Sentinel the letter of vindication of Mayor KILBOURN, in regard to the resignation of Mr. GOODALL, in the Fourth Ward. As near as we can learn, we cannot doubt that Mr. GOODALL did send the despatch as alleged, but whether he made any reservations as to its use we have no means of knowing. The Sentinel, however, promises the other side of the matter. Out with it—we love to see the truth brought to light on all matters.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—We find two communications upon our table with no names attached, which is sufficient to reject them. One in regard to some strictures upon the Spiritualists, that appear in the Chicago Evangelist, and the other a brief review of one of Mr. Brownson's lectures. The first would be well enough if we had the name of the author; the latter we could not admit from the fact that we have readily allowed a correspondent to say enough upon the subject.

A Female Legree.

THE New Orleans True Delta of Oct. 20, has the following:

"FIENDISH OUTRAGE.—A woman named Fanny Smith, was yesterday arrested on a charge of burning with hot irons, and otherwise cruelly ill-treating, two slave boys whom she owns, and who live with her in a house on St. Louis-st. It is said that Fanny's establishment is a brothel of the grossest stamp, and that her behavior towards her slaves is the most fiendish that can possibly be imagined. It is to be hoped that such findishness will not be permitted to pass unpunished. It is a little strange that affidavits in relation to charges similar to that made against Fanny are generally hidden from the reporters in the Recorder's Office of the Second District. Fanny had recently returned from California with goodly stores of wealth, but surely her wealth cannot purchase impunity for so foul an offense."

We are glad to see our New Orleans contemporary waking up to the rights of the press, which, like almost every other privilege of freemen, are recklessly trampled under foot, for the convelence of the slaveholders. We do not consider it in the least "strange" that the affidavits containing such charges should be smuggled out of sight of the reporters. Reporters are a set of people whom slavery cannot endure. As to Fanny's wealth purchasing impunity—the mere fact that, he is a slaveholder is quite sufficient to secure that.—Boston Telegraph.

The stage of the Boston theater, on the evening of the 3d inst., was strewn with flowers,an ovation to the beauty, talent, and worth of Julia Dean—a testimonial of the admiring citizens of Boston.

[Correspondence of the Free Democrat.]

Letter from Kansas.

LAWRENCE, Kansas Ter., Nov. 4, 1854.

FRIEND BOOTH:—From this far land I remember my obligation to your excellent paper for many an hour of enjoyment I remember, too, the thousand and one ties which bind my sympathies to the noble men and women of your beautiful State, and would not willingly that they should forget me.

I had commenced arrangements to visit Wisconsin for the purpose of locating a home for myself and family. But the Kansas Emigration Aid Company offered advantages which turned my steps this way. I came expecting to find a second Wisconsin, with a still milder and less changeable climate. It is as I expected; Kansas is Wisconsin, only a "little more so," in her most beautiful features. There are no swamps to be found in this region. There are fewer small streams, but more springs.

Do you remember the splendid scene, the grand rolling prairie dotted with groves of oak, which held our party in almost speechless ecstacy, about six miles this side of Monroe, in Green County? Well, yesterday I rode around on Capitol Hill, as the settlers have named it, a gradually approached elevation, graded by nature's own hand, ready for the noblest pile of buildings that any State can appropriate,—and from this elevation I looked around upon a scene more beautiful and more magnificent than any ever before presented to my view.—The Company has laid out a city two miles square, and Capitol Hill rises in the centre.—About two-thirds up on its northern side, and overlooking the Kansas river, is a fine plat of table-land, several acres in extent, suited to public or private buildings, and commanding a beautiful view of the country beyond and on either side of the river. From this elevation Capitol Hill rises gradually, and sweeps out toward the South and West; its three other sides supported and surrounded by a natural wall of limestone from three to ten feet high, throwing up an area of some 15 acres, ready for the beautifying hand of the architect and the horticulturist. From this hill we have a view of the Kansas, and the Delaware Reservation beyond, on one side, and on the other, the Wakarusa, which sweeps two-thirds of the area between it and the Kansas, with broad prairies and belts of woodland stretching far beyond.—The prairie is all rolling; and the numerous springs and ravines which mark the Wakarusa plat, are bordered by groves of fine trees, diversifying the scene and lending it unequalled charms.

But I must cut short my description of the country, and will only add a chapter descriptive of pioneer life, for the amusement of your readers.

Last evening I lectured by invitation in the first church or meeting-house erected in the settlement. The lecture hour was announced by the ringing up and down of the city dinner bell. My subject was the "Rights of Women," a topic on the tapis and being stoutly contended when I arrived in the settlement.

Now let me give a picture of this Meeting-House, which was finished only yesterday, and which I expect to describe in future years, when the gorgeous pile effected by longer settled countries shall take its place—adding with pride that I had the honor of dedicating it to the equal rights of woman, in the first audience that ever congregated within its walls.

This "Meeting-House" is 64 by 20 feet and constructed first of poles, or small round timbers, and is simply the sharp roof of a Yankee cottage, having a ridge-pole through the center and its sides resting on the ground, so that it stands upon the ground for all the world like the roof of a building. The poles run up the length of the building, horizontally, and are some 16 inches apart, and supported by rafters where the poles join; over these on the outside, is a thick thatching of prairie hay, tied by cotton twine to the poles. Of course the inside of the building presents to the eye only hay and poles, the hay escaping in single straws rather freely, and tickling the faces that get too near the sloping sides. Bundles of prairie hay were freely strewed upon the floor, (ground) and my auditors ranged themselves "a la Turk" till no aisle remained between the desk and entrance. There were a number of boxes and trunks, belonging to some of the last party, who have to lodge there till they get up tents or log-houses to live in—and on these the women were seated on one side near me. My desk was constructed of two tool-chests, piled one on the other, and lighted by two glass lanthorns, suspended, at equal distances, from cross poles, and threw their light in the faces of the auditors. It was a novel scene, and I enjoyed it as I have seldom done a lecture occasion.—With my earnest sympathy in your public and private relations, and a perfect confidence that the Freemen and Women of Wisconsin will stand by you to the "bat's end" in your war upon the Slave Power, I remain truly

C. I. H. NICHOLS.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION.

The Supreme Court of Georgia against the Supreme Court of the United States.

Paddleford vs. the City of Savannah.—The important principle established by this case, that the Democratic Supreme Court of Georgia will not be bound by decisions of the United States Supreme Court, when a majority of United States Judges are Whigs.

The opinion of the Court is a very lengthy one, and would occupy, if published in full, a page and a half or two pages of the TIMES. The only part of any general interest, is upon the question whether State Courts are bound by the decisions of the United States Supreme Court. The opinion of the Court was rendered by

BENNING, J., who, after quoting voluminously from the history of the State Conventions held to ratify the Constitution, in support of the proposition that the Constitution delegated to the General Government, or any department thereof, no power by implication, but only delegated such powers as it expressly enumerated, proceeded as follows:

I have assumed that the Constitution is to be construed in the sense in which its makers understood it when they made it. Who will dispute this?

In what sense those makers did understand it, I have endeavored to show. Have I succeeded? What is there against my conclusions? Nothing, except some decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. Are not these decisions, per se, evidence of what was the sense which the makers of the Constitution had of the meaning of that instrument? I say, by no means. What that sense was, is a question of fact, which has to be solved by going into the domain of facts. It is a question which evidence, not ipse dixit, must determine.

And I say, further, that the rule of construction of the Supreme Court, as it is to be deduced from the decisions of that Court, is one which needs only to be read in its consequences, to satisfy everybody that it could not have been the rule of the makers of the instrument. Is this so? Let us take one of its most celebrated decisions—the decision in McCulloch vs. Maryland, (4 Wheat. 316),—and see.

The Court in that case decided first, that Congress had power to make a bank. Secondly, that the States had no power to tax the branches of such a bank, established within their territory. In order to arrive at this Conclusion the Court had to have very large premises. Accordingly, to support the first conclusion, it pronounced the rule of construing the clause of the Constitution which gives Congress power to pass all laws which may be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the enumerated powers to be this:

"The result of the most careful and attentive consideration bestowed upon this clause is, that if it does not enlarge, it cannot be construed to restrain, the powers of Congress, or to impair the right of the Legislature to exercise its best judgment in the selection of measures to carry into execution the constitutional powers of the Government."

This means, that among measures for executing "the constitutional powers of Government," Congress may, at discretion, choose one as well as another. And this is giving Congress the power to make a dictator. The appointment of a dictator would be a measure by which all the powers of the Government could be executed most promptly and most efficiently. It is by far the simplest of all modes.

The argument will stand thus: Congress has power to select any measure for executing the constitutional powers of the Government.

The appointment of a dictator would be a prompt, efficient and simple measure to execute any of its powers.

Therefore Congress has power to appoint a dictator. The premises are amply large enough

To support the second conclusion, the Court lays down this proposition:

"We find, then, on just theory a total failure of this original right to tax the means employed by the Government of the Union, for the execution of its powers."

And this:

"That the power to tax involves the power to destroy."

And these:

"If we apply the principle for which the State of Maryland contends, to the Constitution generally, we shall find it capable of changing totally the character of that instrument. We shall find it capable of arresting all the measures of the Government, and of prostrating it at the foot of the States. If the State may tax one instrument employed by the Government, in the execution of its powers, they may tax any and every other. They may tax the mail, they may tax the mint, they may tax all the means employed by the Government, to an excess which would defeat all the ends of Government,—this was not intended by the American people."

Now, the principle at the bottom of all these propositions is this. The States have no power by the exercise of which they can defeat all the ends of Government—the General Government—or any of those ends.

But the States, by the exercise of the taxing power, can take from their inhabitants every cent, the inhabitants can spare and live.

According to the principle of this decision, therefore, the States have no power to lay any tax on their inhabitants; and if they have no power to tax, it follows that they have no power to enable them to keep up their State Governments; and without State Governments they have no power to keep themselves alive, as States.

The principle comes to this:—that the States, in making the Constitution, intended to give up the power of self-preservation.

On the one hand, then, Congress may convert the General Government into a Dictator; on the other, the States have not retained the power of self-preservation. This is McCulloch vs. Maryland. It is to this that the Supreme Court rule leads. Did the makers of the constitution intend any such rule as this?

But this case is evidence in another point of view. It shows that the Supreme Court of the United States in construing the Constitution, not only do not seek for the meaning of the makers of it, but that when they have that meaning, unmistakably, without seeking for it, they disregard it. They decide here that Congress may charter a corporation. Now the power "to grant charters of incorporation, where the interests of the United States might require, and the Legislative provisions of the several States might be incompetent," was asked to be given to Congress, in the Convention that framed the Constitution. There being much objection to the breadth of this power, as asked for, and some indications of favor to a power merely to incorporate canals, the motion was modified so as to admit a distinct question, specifying and limited to the case of canals. It was rejected by eight States to three; and "the other part," says Mr. Madison, "fell, of course, as including the power rejected." The Convention, then, refused the power to incorporate so much as a canal; and in the face of this refusal, the Supreme Court of the United States say, the gave power to incorporate a bank, with a capital of $35,000,000, and authority to establish branches in every State. What matters is to such a Court, what was the wish of the makers of the Constitution? (5 Ell. Deb. 543.)

The disregard of this Court to the known will of the makers of the Constitution, as to the rule of construction, is equally exhibited in a number of other cases. (See especially Cohens vs. Virginia, 6 Wheat., 264; Worcester vs. Georgia, 6 Peters, 515.)

But are not the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States to govern this Court, as to the rule of construing the Constitution? They are not, any more than the decisions of that Court are to be governed by the decisions of this.

Is this true? Let us see. And first let us try the question by the principles of the party of liberal construction, as promulgated by their most distinguished leaders.

That party held, at the time the Constitution was in the process of adoption, as well as afterwards, that the State Governments were "supreme" and "sovereign," as to some things, and that the General Government was "supreme" and "sovereign" as to some. (3 Ell. Deb., 356; see also McCulloch vs. Maryland, 2 Wheat., 316.)

Now if the General Government, by its Judiciary, can come out of its sphere, into the sphere of a State Government, and ravish a case thence out of the hands of the State Judiciary, the two Governments are not equally supreme within their respective spheres. But they are, by admission of Hamilton and Marshall, equally supreme in their respective spheres; therefore, the former Government cannot do this, with respect to the latter. As well might it be said that England could order a case out of France, from a French Court into an English; or that a State Court could order a case out of the Supreme Court of the United States into it. None but a superior can give an order; none but an inferior is bound to obey one.

The question, when tried by the rule of strict construction, does not admit of a doubt. That rule is, that the General Government has no power, except such as has been expressly delegated to it; and that the delegation of express power strictly construed. Now, jurisdiction over State Courts is not expressly given to the General Government; or any department of it. Therefore, according to the rule, such jurisdiction is not given at all.

Not only is this sort of jurisdiction not expressly given, but there is another sort expressly given, which necessarily excludes the idea that this was intended to be given. This is done in the third article for organizing the judiciary.

After quoting this article at length, with some original interlineations of his own, Judge Benning proceeds as follows:

The mere supply of words necessarily understood, makes it as clear as day, that the appellate jurisdiction delegated to the Supreme Court applies only to the inferior Courts of the United States ordained and established by Congress, and not to State Courts.

But again, if this sort of appellate jurisdiction exists, then it exists equally with respect to a State Court of one grade as to a State Court of another. It existed as to all Courts "inferior" to the Supreme Court; and if the highest State Courts are inferior to that Court, still more so are the less high. If this sort of jurisdiction exists, then there may, as far as this State is concerned, be an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from the Supreme Court of the State, from the Inferior Courts, from the Ordinary, from the Justices' Courts, from Corporation Courts, and perhaps from Courts-Martial. This appellate jurisdiction, then, if it exists, extends to every State Court alike.

And the same sort of construction which makes it to exist at all, as to any State Court, will much more easily make it extend to every case that can arise in any such Court. The cases to which it is to extend, as mentioned by the Constitution, are, "All cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made under their authority," and others. But these are enough. What are cases "arising under the Constitution?" Under the liberal rule of construction, it is easy to say that the Constitution is an instrument which gives one part of the powers of Government to the General Government, and gives the other part to the States—that all power is given by the Constitution. Now, if that be said, no case of any kind can arise in a State which will not draw in question some power of the State, or some power of the General Government; but if a case draws in question a power of either, it is a case arising under the Constitution: because on this theory the powers of both are derived from the Constitution.

This appellate jurisdiction, if it exists, then extends to all State Courts of all grades, and to all cases in those Courts. The effect of such extension, would be to make the States exist at the mercy of the General Government. If they laid a tax, the taxed person might refuse to pay it; and it sued for it, appeal to the Supreme Court. That Court could pronounce the tax law unconstitutional; as flowing from a power, which, it it existed in the States, might enable the States to destroy the General Government, by taking to themselves all that could be paid for taxes, and leaving nothing for the General Government to take. This is but an instance of a thousand.

Now, the power to annul State laws was not given to the General Government. The Federal Convention refused repeatedly to give this power to any department of the General Government. In Mr. Randolph's propositions, which were the basis of the Constitution, the effort to give this power first appears. His 6th resolution had these words:

"Resolved, That each branch (of the Legislature) ought to possess the right to negative all laws passed by the several States, contravening, in the opinion of the National Legislature, the articles of Union; or any treaty subsisting under the authority of the United States."

His 8th, these:

"That the Executive and a convenient number of the National Judiciary ought to compose a Council of Revision, with authority to examine every act of the National Legislature before it shall operate; and every act of a particular Legislature before a negative thereon shall be final, and that the dissent of the said Council shall amount to a rejection, unless the act of the National Legislature be again passed, or that of a particular Legislature be again negatived by—of the members of each branch.'—5 Ell. Deb., 127."

Here the Judiciary was to take part in the veto of State Laws. It might, with the President, affirm a veto applied by either branch of Congress to a State Law. But even this limited right was not allowed to the Judiciary. It was struck from the resolution, and at once.

So the power proposed to be given to the Federal Legislature, "To negative all laws passed by the several States, contravening in the Legislature, the articles of Union," &c., was refused by the vote of seven States to three.—(Ib, 321.)

It appears, then, that the Convention which drafted the Constitution, although repeatedly requested to give the veto of State Laws to the General Government, steadily refused it—refused to give a mere modicum of it to the Judiciary. And if it refused to give the power directly, it is not to be presumed that it gave it indirectly, by a forced implication in the third article,—gave it, indeed, without knowing what it was doing.

Now, it must be manifest to any one, on a little reflection, that if the United States Courts have power over the State Courts, they have power over the State Laws—power over the operation of those Laws, within the territory of the States—power to nullify every act of the States. Was this the intention of the makers of the Constitution—these very States?

The conclusion is, that the Supreme Court of Georgia is coequal and coördinate with the Supreme Court of the United States, and not inferior and subordinate to that Court. That as to the reserved powers, the State Court is supreme; that as to the delegated powers, the United States Court is supreme; that as to powers, both delegated and reserved—concurrent powers—both Courts, in the language of Hamilton, are "equally supreme;" and that as a consequence, the Supreme Court of the United States has no jurisdiction over the Supreme Court of Georgia; and cannot, therefore, give it an order, or make for it a precedent.

I am aware that Congress has passed two acts contravening this view. The act of 1789, to establish the Judicial Courts of the United States, and the act of 1833, further to provide for the collection of duties on imports. (1 Story's Laws, 53; 4 in., 2,340.

The latter declares that in any case where suit of prosecution shall be commenced in a Court of any State, against any officer of the United States or other, for or on account of an act done under the Revenue laws of the United States, &c., "it shall be lawful for the defendant, at any time before trial," upon petition, to transfer his case into the Circuit Court of the United States; and it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, to issue a writ of certiorari to the State Court, requiring said State Court to send to said Circuit the record and proceedings in the cause."

The men that made this act did not have the effrontery to make it to last longer than the "end of the next session of Congress."

The act makes the Circuit Courts—the inferior Courts of the United States—superior to the highest State Courts. And, in truth, there is as much warrant in the Constitution for making these inferior Courts so, as for making the Supreme Court so.

If the Constitution does not give the General Government, or any department of it, jurisdiction over the Judiciary of the States, it does not give Congress the power to pass such laws as these; and these laws are therefore void.

My opinion is that the Constitution does not, and I have my reasons for the opinion.

But, say that I am wrong in this opinion; still, I deny that the decision of the Supreme Court referred to, are precedents to govern this Court.

These decisions were mere partisan decisions—to be over-ruled in the Court which made them, as soon as a majority of the members of the Court should be of different politica from the politics of the members who made the decisions.

There are now, and have been before now, in these United States, but two parties with a clearly marked line of separation between them The party which stands on the side of the delegated powers, and that which stands on the side of the reserved powers—the National party and the States' Rights party.

Now, the effect of the decisions of the Supreme Court, to which I have referred, is to put up the National party, and to put down the States' Rights party. The decisions are, therefore, political. Indeed, they discuss the same topics, and come to the same results, in all respects, as do the speakers in Congress, the stump orators out of Congress, and the newspaper writers in and out of it—of the same politics as the majority of the Court making the decisions.

Are the Judges partisans? What are their antecedents? The leading Judges on the Bench of the Supreme Court, before the era of Judge Marshall, were Jay, Wilson, and Ellsworth.—Each of these had been an active and an ardent politician, before he went upon the Bench. He had acquired his bend in politics. On the Bench he uttered the same Constitutional doctrines which he had uttered off.

In the era of Judge Marshall, which lasted through thirty-four years, he was the Chief of the Court and Judge Story was a good second. Was Judge Marshall a politician? Let the summary of his life, taken from his Biography in the National Portrait Gallery answer.

The learned Judge here gave a brief account of Judge Marshall's public career, taken from that work, and then proceeded:

It was not only on the Bench that he taught politics. He entered the fields of history and biography for the same purpose. For what is his Life of Washington and History of the Colonies, but a labored defence of his party, and an effort to raise its desperate fortunes by forcing the name of Washington on the list of its patrons? No; it was not the death of Washington, but the death of the Federal party that set the work on foot.

Marshall, then, was a partizan if there ever was one. While thus a partizan holding all the opinions of his party, he is, by a party President, in the last hour of the party, when its death warrant has already been signed, to save him from the general doom, and as the only reward left for party services, Presidencies being out of the question, offered a Judgeship. This time he accepts it, although he refused it a year before, when it had not become apparent that the last hour of the party was at hand, and when, therefore, higher offices might not be loooked for, from it, than that of Judge. What was the course for any partizan to pursue, under such circumstances? That which he pursued. He took sanctuary for life in the Supreme Court. But there he was the same man that he had been before he got there. The only effect was, to make him more bold in the avowal of his principles. He no longer had to answer for them at the ballot-box. He and his Court with respect to the Constitution took one road—the other departments of the Government, and the vast majority of the the American people took another. There they have been respectively traveling the greater part of the time since.—The opinions of neither have had the least influence upon the actions of the other. As to Judge Story, he is understood to have distinguished himself somewhat as a Republican partizan, before the war of 1812, in Massachusetts, where Republicans were then rather scarce.—being a young lawyer of some promise, and about the only lawyer of that party there of much note, he was selected by Mr. Madison for the bench of the Supreme Court of the U. States. But once on the bench, he forsook his party and became the humble interpreter of Marshall—the Dumont to Bentham. He made it his business to illustrate and embody the political doctrines of his chief. And he did in what he styles his "Commentaries on the Constitution." This is a work of as rank a partizan character on one side, as the Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions, and Mr. Madison's Report of 1798 and 1799, are on the other. Indeed, these Commentaries, and most, if not all, of Marshall's Constitutional decisions, are only so much talk at those resolutions and that report, although the resolutions and report ar seldom mentioned.

Now partizan decisions may do to bind the political party to which the makers of them happen to belong. They certainly bind no other party. And this has been the uniform opinion and practice of all parties in this country. The Supreme Court said a bank is Constitutional; yet, bank charters have been vetoed by three several Presidents: Madison, Jackson, Tyler.

And partizan decisions—and all decisions on Constitutional questions must be more or less partizan—ought not to bind as precedents, because they are not made by the tribunal which in the last resort is supreme. This tribunal is the people of the States—the authors of the Constitution.

The general conclusion is, that what was before laid down as to the sense in which the makers of the Constitution understood the Constitution, when they made it, is true, anything in any decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding, and that the makers of the Constitution, at the time when they made it, understood in the following sense:

I. That it delegated to the General Government, or any department thereof, no power by implication, but only delegated such powers as were expressly enumerated.

II. That it delegated no exclusive power unless the delegation was said to be exclusive.

III. That it laid no prohibition on the States except such as it specified.

IV. That the words used in it, if susceptible of more meanings than one, were used in the meaning which was least favorable to the delegation of power, and most favorable to its retention.

THE FIRE.—A fire occurred this morning at about two o'clock, destroying the Franklin House and barn and two small houses adjoining. The Franklin House was owned by WM. DWYER, and was not insured. Loss about $2000 in all. Mr. DWYER complains very bitterly that the firemen were not on the ground under three-quarters of an hour after the bells rung, and that they might have saved a good portion of the house. We do not know with how much justice he complains, but we know that our firemen usually work pretty well.

FIRE IN ROCK ISLAND.—We learn that a new brick block of four houses, near the American House, in Rock Island, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 8th inst. The building was the property of W. The coarse flour and bran pay for milling. Here is a bad loss to somebody. Whoever shall take the lead in building a good Mill here, will be entitled to a seat in the General Assembly, or be first Mayor of the city.—La Crosse Dem.

FREE NEGROES.—Three cases against colored persons for being in the State without license were on docket yesterday before the Recorder. The defendants, Hiram R. Revels, G. W. Peck and Caroline Epsie, were each fined $10, and required to leave the State forthwith. Revels, it will be remembered, is the pastor of the colored church on Green street.—St. Louis Dem.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9.—Arrison was arrested for sending the infernal machine to Allison and his wife, by which both were killed, in this city, last summer. He was arrested at Muscatine, Iowa, and is now on his way to this city

After looking over the returns from Macy's District, and from Illinois, we feel like retiring to some secluded spot, and reading some interesting work, "Love's Labor Lost," or "Pilgrim's Progress.—Argus.

The editor who recently perpetrated the same joke, "down east," in the State of Maine, was advised to read the "Call to the Unconverted."—Madison Jour.

CORRECTION.—The Milwaukee Sentinel says Babcock, Republican, is probably elected to the Assembly in this county. Babcock is a Democrat, and is in all probability defeated by Geo. P. Thompson, independent Republican.—Madison Journal.

A RELIC OF BARBARISM.—The whipping-post is still in use in Covington, Ky. Lawrence Hunt was publicly whipped, in that place, last week, for stealing caps.

The Fourth Ward Assemblymen.

Messrs. Editors:

In your paper issued on the morning of election day (Nov. 7) appears the following, editorially:

"NOT DECLINED."

"The opponents of Mr. Goodall, the Republican candidate for Assembly in the 4th ward—and who is absent from this city—circulated the falsehood yesterday that he had been heard from, and had declined the nomination. Mr. Goodall is still a candidate, and those who have been guilty of the mean trick, will find that it will only re-act upon them, and give him all the heavier majority. So we think and hope.

And farther in your paper of the next morning, reversing the result of the election, you have the following:

"THE FOURTH WARD.—Our friends in the fourth ward made a noble fight and achieved a splendid victory yesterday. To the surprise of everybody, they gave a round majority for the entire Republican ticket, and their Assemblyman IRA E. GOODALL, by fifty eight majority! Considering the odds against them, and the fact that his Honor Mayor Kilbourn was at pains to publish a handbill, certifying that Mr. Goodall, who was not at home to speak for himself, had declined—the result in the ward was the greatest triumph of the day."

Now, putting these two together, we have an assertion and an inference. The assertion is that the report relative to Mr. Goodall's withdrawal, was false; and the inference is, that I was the author of that report, inasmuch as I had "published a handbill" certifying to the fact of his declination. And I am told that in this light certain persons are using your assertion, and the only inference fairly deducible from it, for improper purposes; except for which circumstance I should not consider it necessary thus to notice the subject.

But both the the assertion and the inference are founded in error, as I shall herein show. The report that Mr. Goodall had declined an election, was true; and consequently in pronouncing it "false," you were in error. But whether true or false, I was not the author of the report, and consequently, in this respect, the inference is erroneous.

The simple facts in the case are, that Mr. P. B. Hill—a gentleman of high character and well known standing, who has never been known to do, nor suspected of an unworthy action, and who is the last man who would do any thing injurious to his absent friend Mr. Goodall—received from the latter gentleman about the first of the present month, a Telegram stating that he declined an election to the Assembly, and that he could not accept of it under any circumstances whatever. This Telegram, Mr. Hill placed in the hands of his friend Mr. W. B Johnson, to be made known as he should think fit. Mr. J. showed it to me on the evening of Thursday (2nd inst.) four days before the election and asked my opinion as to the propriety of bringing out another candidate in place of Mr. G., which I discouraged, as I thought Mr. Taylor could be elected over Mr. Larkin, the field being clear by the withdrawal of Mr. G. He wished me however not to mention the circumstance, until he should have an opportunity of seeing Mr Finch after his return from Racine, adding that it would not be necessary to publish the withdrawal of Mr. G. until Monday or perhaps Tuesday morning. Accordingly I did not mention that I had any information on the subject until Monday following, although on Saturday I heard it from several different persons, to whom, or through whom Mr. Johnson had himself made it known.

On Friday morning, the next day after he showed me the Telegram, he showed it to Mr. Joel Kneeland; and on Saturday he stated the contents of it to Mr. A. Hawley and Mr. J. Crouch; and on Monday he showed it to Mr. Finch; and I have reason to suppose that he showed it to several others, through some or all of whom it gained publicity some days before I mentioned it, and before I issued the aforesaid "handbill." My handbill was not issued until after 12 o'clock election day, and was in reply to one which I found posted about the streets, that Mr. G. had not declined, in which I stated a simple fact as of my own knowledge, and gave references to the other parties, knowing the same facts.

In this I had certainly no idea of doing any thing to the prejudice of Mr. G., nor is it reasonable to suppose that Mr. Hill had any such idea in giving the facts to all who enquired of him; but on the contrary, felt that he was in the performance of a friendly service in making known what Mr. G. had requested him to do.—And it is but fair to presume, that Mr. G. will feel under more obligation to him, than to those officious, friends who have forced him in his absence, into a position which he did not wish to occupy.

The certificates hereto appended, sufficiently corroborate the foregoing statements, and show that the report of Mr. Goodall's declination was correct; and further, that that report came from Mr. Johnson, and not from me. I do not look upon Mr. Johnson as an "opponent" of Mr. G., nor am I willing to be placed in that category myself. What the personal relations between them may be, I do not know, but I suppose it to be friendly; but as for myself I can say that I have never been any "opponent" of Mr. G., but on the contrary our personal relations have always been of the most friendly character.

It is true that I regretted to see him nominated for the Assembly, after Mr. Taylor had come out independent; believing that if he and Mr. T. both run, it would be the means of defeating both of them. Mr. Taylor was one of our old free soilers of '48, and has never changed his opinions in regard to those great questions which now chiefly occupy the public mind; and I was therefore glad when I learned that Mr. Goodall had declined, believing that thereby Mr. Taylor's election would be secured; and I have no doubt such would have been the case, had Mr. Goodall's friends complied with his wishes, and suffered his name to be withdrawn.

As I stated in my hand bill, I presume you were "misinformed" as to the facts in the case; and still presuming that your assertions were made and inferences drawn from information derived from others without due consideration, and not for sinister purposes, I entertain the reasonable expectation that you will make the proper corrections.

Respectfully, &c.

BYRON KILBOURN.

This is to certify that on Friday or Saturday last, Willard B. Johnson Esq., exhibited to me a telegraphic communication from Ira E. Goodall, declining an election to the Assembly, and stating that he could not accept it under any circumstances whatever.

JOEL KNEELAND.

This is to certify that on Saturday, Nov. 4th inst., Mr. W. B. Johnson informed me that he had a telegraphic communication from Mr. Ira E. Goodall declining an election for Member of Assembly, and did not mention it confidentially, nor request me to keep it secret.

JONATHAN CROUCH.

Milwaukee Nov. 9th. 1854.

This is to certify that on Monday last, Willard B. Johnson Esq., exhibited to me a telegraphic dispatch, purporting to be from I. E. Goodall, in which he declined to stand a canvass for member of Assembly from the 4th Ward in this city.—I make this statement at the request of Hon. Byron Kilbourn.

A. FINCH, Junior.

The Result in this County.—The aggregate vote in this county on congressman at the late election is 1513. In 1852 it was 1714. It can hardly be doubted that there has been an increase in the vote of the county since 1852, and that it is safe to assume that the vote of the county was not out by three hundred. Wells gets now 115 more votes than he got in 1852, so that it is pretty safe to assume that all his vote in the county was polled. Spooner has 373 less than was got by Durkee and Durand, so it is equally safe to assume that the 300 not out were lost to the Republican vote. Every reader can draw his own conclusions from these premises.—Kenosha Telegraph.

IDA MAY!

A STORY OF THINGS ACTUAL AND POSSIBLE,

—BY—

MARY LANGDON.

'For we speak that we know, and testify that we have seen.'

THIS STORY OF SOUTHERN LIFE

IS DESTINED to produce an impression upon the nation, powerful, far reaching and permanent. As a NOVEL, merely, it equals in interest The most brilliant fictions of modern times.

But it is chiefly in relation to the institution of

that the book will awaken the deepest interest. The thrilling incidents to which this anomalous institution gives rise, by interweaving the destinies of master and slave in the same web of fate, are presented with wonderful vividness. It is not a re-arrangement of old stories, but an original creation; and it will appeal to the price of the white race

With New and Startling Force.

But a calm inflexible adherence to TRUTH marks every page. Nothing of the "blue fire" of melodrama is seen; nor is the deepest tragedy marred by the screech and contortions of a second rate actress.

No reader, however indifferent to novels in general, can possibly leave off without finishing it. The preliminary edition has been read by a number of the most eminent literary men in the country, as well as by persons of average intellect and culture.

THE VERDICT IS UNANIMOUS. "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." From the boy who devours Robinson Crusoe, up to the accomplished scholar who is familiar with the highest efforts of authorship—all bear enthusiastic testimony to the genius of the book.

In anticipation of an IMMENSE SALE unsurpassed by that of any other book, the Publishers will be able to answer orders as they are received.

The work will be published NOVEMBER 15th.

GERMAN REFORM PAPER.

☞ From the 7th of October, 1854, will be published in Milwaukee, "DER CORSA," (THE CORSAIR,) a Weekly Paper, established to forward political reforms, edited by BERNHARD DOMSCHKE, with Mr. L. WITTIG as a regular contributor.

The "CORSAR," will adhere to the principles set down in the Madison Platform of the 13th of July, 1854, and be, of course, opposed to those parties who like to have stagnancy instead of reform, and Slavery instead of Freedom. All those who take a warm interest in the contest against the reactionary parties and the demagogues, who take the lead of them, and in the realization of genuine Republican Principles, are invited to subscribe to the "CORSAR."

The "CORSAR" will be published every Saturday, at the price of $2,00 per year, payable in advance every six months. Since the "CORSAR," will be propagated within the State of Wisconsin, as well as abroad, it is well adapted to advertisements, which will be inserted at the usual rate.
